

2012: The Challenge

by Robert V. Gerard, 14 November 2009

A reality shift rapidly approaches mankind. Will we chose a fear based doomsday apocalyptic ending or ascend into a higher consciousness of beauty and peace? Over the past twenty years, slowly but surly, information about the "Ending-Times" has been surfacing among the populous, especially the Mayan Calendar predictions for the 21st of December 2012.

Now there is a movie thriller about the ending times. It's shocking, graphic, and cites concern. According to the Mayans, a formidable challenge will occur as the Earth will shift its poles and or collide with a rouge planet. Regardless of the source for change, most, if not all, civilizations will perish. Who will survive? What about our children? Humanity? Why now? Why me?

Since 1985, a plethora of "2012" information has been flooding the Spiritual New Age communities. Sci-Fi flicks have also capitalized on the event. But now it's almost 2010, and thoughts are gearing up. Damn, this could be true!

Not me! No way, José. I will not contribute to this nonsense, however, I could become a victim of what you may be and others are thinking and creating. I'm exhausted by how easily people are becoming submissive and complacent to this event. We have the power, the design, and the love of God behind us to change our realities. Sir Edmond Burke, the great Irish philosopher circa 1750 wrote: "All it take for the triumph of Evil to succeed, is for good men to do nothing."

We must discern few key elements of our creative powers before we can truly explore this horrific ending-times phenomenon:

- Can this event be true as predicted by the Mayans two thousands years ago?
- Is this the program of the Dark Forces initiated to generate fear, possibly for another more subtle event or invasion of our Freedom?
- Can we over-ride the momentum of this event by creating a more beautiful picture for our world?

It all boils down to what does 2012 mean to you? Are you a co-creator of this event or realizing that there are more options that can be made to overcome the tragedy forecasted? There have been many other predictions before without any substantial evidence of its truth. I firmly believe that "What you sow, you shall reap." Using this formula, we are all in for a nasty fry of our souls if we don't take action to see something more pleasant.

As a Spiritual Teacher and Visionary healer, I encourage each of you to reconsider contributing to this prediction. Stay in the Light and understand your history. Previous civilizations localized, came and went, and perished mysteriously. Some continents sank under the sea or some dried up in the harsh deserts. Maybe the Earth needed to cleanse itself of corrupt civilizations that would eventually impair her capacity to properly dwell in her galactic community.

But now our civilization is global. Were talking about 7 billion people, many of whom are good and beautiful. I do not trust predictions that void beauty and goodness. I trust what God, the Father-Mother ONE of all humanity, has designed within each of us to ascend into a higher consciousness of peace.

As you explore the richness and depth of your DNA's function, your purpose in life, mission, and destiny become more apparent. Understanding your Inner World contains the knowledge of your Outer World. Let us not fall victim of the despots of power, time and turmoil of ancient history, instead, lets us create a historical legacy that the civilizations of our time rose above the challenge.

Lets demonstrate that as biologically created brothers and sisters we can prevail, ascend into beauty, live in goodness, and enjoy creating a peaceful environment so that Earth can be proud of her children and shine within her Galactic family.
